The COVID-19 pandemic has had a significant impact on ICUs and critical care healthcare providers all across the globe. Many patients with COVID-19 need hospitalisation and admission to the ICU. Hence, ICUs have had their work cut out for them and have faced many challenges, including the management of high patient flow, appropriate allocation of resources, the need to balance care of patients with COVID-19 and those with other critical illnesses, restructuring workflows, and ensuring the safety of healthcare workers, patients and their families.

There is a need for clinicians to evaluate and review how we performed during this crisis, what we did well and what we could have done better.

After a brief introduction from Mag. Christian Marolt, Executive and Editorial Director at HealthManagement.org, this topic will be further explored by the panel. During the Q&A session, the audience will also have an opportunity to exchange ideas with our critical care experts.
