Viz.ai Names Michael Herring as Chief Financial Officer

Seasoned financial leader brings experience at leading companies in healthcare and software as a service (SaaS) to help company scale and drive durable growth

Viz.ai, the leader in AI-powered disease detection and intelligent care coordination, has named financial leader   Michael Herring as chief financial officer (CFO). Mr. Herring will report to CEO Chris Mansi, leading financial strategies and overseeing the global financial organization, including planning, treasury, tax, reporting and investor relations.

"Michael's deep experience in guiding both public and private companies will be invaluable as Viz.ai continues to scale," said Chris Mansi, MD, CEO and co-founder at Viz.ai. "He brings a proven track record of driving strong and sustainable financial growth and deepens our leadership bench to accelerate our impact on more patients."

Mr. Herring is a seasoned financial executive with more than 30 years of experience. He most recently served as CFO at Color Health, a health technology company, where he led the financial infrastructure and operations teams to support the company's growth and deliver critical medical care to millions during the COVID-19 pandemic. Previously, he served as business finance officer (BFO) at Google for the Android, Play and Chrome product lines, president and CFO at Pandora Media, global operations lead at Adobe and CFO at Omniture and Ancestry.com where he helped establish business models that scaled to over $1B in revenue.

"Now, more than ever, we need AI-powered care that increases access to life-saving treatments across our hospitals and healthcare systems," said Mr. Herring. "I look forward to playing a meaningful role in the next chapter of Viz.ai's growth and delivering on our mission to make healthcare work faster and smarter."

Herring earned a bachelor's degree in Economics from the University of California at Los Angeles and is a Certified Public Accountant.
