The City of Helsinki will actively contribute to the event's development and content. The steering committee is chaired by the executive director of the social services, health care, and rescue services division of the city of Helsinki, Mr. Juha Jolkkonen. Furthermore, the city will generate content for the festival, and take part in designing a special program tailored for international media.

"As the Radical Health Festival Helsinki evolves into a significant platform for industry leaders, professionals, and innovators, the City of Helsinki looks forward to contributing its expertise, fostering meaningful connections, and advancing the discourse on digital social services and healthcare. Already the first festival was a great success, so our expectations for next spring are high", says Jolkkonen.

The 2024 edition of Radical Health Festival Helsinki, with the overarching theme 'Deploying Precision and Prevention at Scale,' promises to build upon its previous success. It will feature a diverse and thought-provoking programme with workshops, talks, and interactive experiences spanning topics from artificial intelligence to mental health and cybersecurity. The event, driven by the idea "It's Critical to Be Radical," aims to transform healthcare, improve clinical and financial outcomes, and make health systems sustainable.
