

HIMSS23 Europe: 7-9 June 2023

The HIMSS European Health Conference & Exhibition is the most influential European health information technology event of the year.

The event is attended by thousands of health leaders and professionals from across Europe, as well as drawing in government officials, CIOs and senior executives, providers, IT professionals, innovators, consultants, and market suppliers.

The event is taking place in the one of the most charismatic, vibrant capital cities in Europe – Lisbon, Portugal from the 7th – 9th June 2023. Lisbon is home to many start-ups and conferences, making this a great location for hosting one of the largest and well-known health conferences.

This conference will be the ideal opportunity for the healthcare community to come together to share insights, build relationships to enhance their network and drive their professional development forward. Additionally, attendees have the opportunity to earn continuing education credits, and stay informed about the most recent and emerging technology innovations.

This is a prime networking opportunity for professionals within the European healthcare community. The event will share the best examples of successful digital health transformation from Europe and across the world. The event is an excellent opportunity to discover new solutions to healthcare's toughest challenges, and for spreading ideas about how they could apply their learnings to improve health outcomes in their locality.
