

Johannes Bleuel Assumes Role as Chief Operating Officer at Hamilton Medical

Hamilton Medical announced that Johannes Bleuel has been appointed as the new Chief Operating Officer (COO) and Executive Board member, starting from December 1, 2023. In his new position, Johannes will be responsible for overseeing critical functions such as Global Procurement, Product Innovation, Production, Quality, Regulatory Affairs, and medin.

Johannes Bleuel is highly qualified, with a master's and PhD in physics from the prestigious Max Planck Institute and brings a wealth of experience to his new role. He has held significant positions at Siemens, where he has gained knowledge and skills in various aspects of operations.

Before joining Hamilton Medical, Johannes served as the Vice President of Operations at Sensirion for an impressive 12 years, making significant contributions to the company's success during his tenure. His expertise and leadership in the field make him a valuable addition to the Hamilton Medical team.

Published on : Mon, 22 Jan 2024