In Wuhan, Tongji Hospital and Union Hospital take the lead in terms of providing quality healthcare and carrying out medical research on COVID-19, thus becoming irreplaceable fortresses at the very forefront of the battle against this epidemic. So far, Tongji Hospital has admitted more than 2,000 coronavirus patients who are critically ill. This makes Tongji Hospital the designated place which admits the most critically ill patients in the whole city. As for Union Hospital, it has received more than 70,000 outpatient visits, both online and offline, from the outbreak of COVID-19 to early February. Pooling expertise and knowledge, the hospital has also organized over 50 teleconsultation conferences with hospitals in other regions of Hubei to provide effective, systematic and advanced treatment plans for coronavirus patients.
