

Test for Heart Transplant Patients Approved

AlloMap measures genetic information contained in the white blood cells (cells of the immune system that defend the body against invading viruses, bacteria or other foreign material) from a patient's blood sample.

Specifically the test measures gene expression

Published on : Thu, 28 Aug 2008