

The National Healthcare CXO Summit invites Dr.Akram Boutros

We are happy to announce that Akram Boutros, MD, the President and CEO of MetroHealth, will join the 23rd National Healthcare CXO Summit and will explain how and why Hospital Systems should become a beacon of health and wellness and not just a place for the sick.

The National Healthcare CXO Summit will run LIVE from 24 - 26 October 2021 at a premium location, the Boston, Encore, Boston, MA, USA. The summit provides a platform that helps America's senior level healthcare executives evaluate and partner with relevant suppliers and solution providers, while we connect innovative healthcare facilities with these senior healthcare strategists through pre-schedule one-to-one business meetings.

The summit will provide executive leadership with the opportunity to interact with pioneers of operational, management, financial and technology solutions, geared entirely to the needs of the healthcare industry.

Speakers include executives from Mount Sinai Health Network, Johns Hopkins Medicine, Altrium Health and Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Centre.

Dr. Boutros suggests that as we move toward a new era in healthcare, innovative organizations have realized that they must become a beacon of health and wellness, instead of just a place for the sick.

Systems like MetroHealth have made great strides in this endeavour, working with the community to develop connections and programs that promote prevention and whole-person health. This inspiring presentation will address:

- Changing the strategic course towards wellness and getting buy-in from stakeholders
- Developing a comprehensive model of care that goes beyond traditional medicine
- Community outreach programs with big results
- Creating an environment of inclusion

Dr. Boutros, in his eight years as the President and CEO of MetroHealth, the public health system in Cleveland, has galvanized political leaders, entrepreneurs and the public around supporting community-wide healthcare many had taken for granted.

With his unwavering commitment to delivering high-quality healthcare to everyone, Dr. Boutros has achieved what many thought was impossible. A new hospital is just one piece of the unprecedented transformation of Cuyahoga County's public healthcare system Dr. Boutros has piloted since he arrived at MetroHealth in 2013.
